

ASPENS

Aspens are deciduous trees, which means they lose their leaves every winter.

Their leaves are green in the spring and summer and turn yellow, orange, or red in the fall before falling off.

They are often found in moist, shady areas around Douglas-firs

Aspens grow in mountainous areas throughout Western North America